'PACIFIED' HERRIN SCENE OF BOMBING; SECOND IN MONTH

Grocery of Candidate in City Election Wrecked by Explosion

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Herrin, Ill., April 10.—The second bombing within a month was staged here early today when an explosion wrecked the grocery store of Marshall McCormack & Brothers in the south side residence district. McCormack is a candidate for mayor on the citizens ticket which is opposed by the conservative ticket sponsored by the Ku Klux Klan. No one was injured.

The explosion which was heard all over the city, wrecked the entire front of the frame store building and shattered glass in homes within a radius of three blocks. The damage to the grocery stock, with the exception of goods in glass jars, was slight.

The explosive is supposed to have been dynamite.

A small motor car was reported to have been seen by a passerby near the store just prior to the explosion.

Although McCormack is a reputed Klansman and formerly was an officer of the organization, he had a dispute with the late S. Glenn Young, drifter and the official Klan newspaper of Herrin is fighting his candidacy for Mayor.

Last week, McCormack declared, he received a telephone call threatening his life if he remained in the race.

The ticket upon which McCormack is running is composed of both Klansmen and anti-Klansmen while the opposition or conservative ticket has full Klan support. The city election is April 21.

TROOPS BROKE UP MOB ATTEMPTING TO GET BALFOUR

Algerian Cavalry Called to Save Englishman in Riot

Damascus, Syria, April 10.—(By the Associated Press)—Algerian cavalry, galloping through the streets of Damascus with eight armored cars are credited with having saved Lord Balfour from the hostile mob of six thousand people which attempted to attack his hotel yesterday.

Two were killed and many injured before the disturbance was quelled.

The mob almost succeeded in reaching the hotel where the veteran statesman is staying, the efforts of the Syrian police having failed completely to check the demonstration. The mounted troops and armored cars scattered the crowd.

The demonstrations against Lord Balfour are due to his work in the establishment of a national Jewish home in Palestine. He is the author of the Balfour declaration, by which Great Britain announced support to the Zionist movement.

Gendarmes Were Cool

Lord Balfour did not venture out of his hotel yesterday because of these disturbances. When the shouting crowds approached the buildings, the French gendarmes displayed the utmost coolness. A French officer, lying almost full length upon his horse, charged singly into the mob as it appeared from the rear. He paid no heed to the suddenness of his move started leader.

The day began in Damascus in an atmosphere of ominous quiet. Shortly after noon the first shouts of the mob could be heard from the municipal square, however. The crowd increased rapidly and the police were unable to cope with them. Each fresh arrival of police only intensified the hostility and excitement.

Two streams of angry Arabs, roaring with excitement and in the ugliest mood, attacked the police with stones and clubs. The situation had assumed a serious aspect when the French officers charged and with his troopers sent the rioters scurrying through the side streets.

Changes in Post Rates Effective April 15th

Postmaster Moyer says he is desirous of giving the best service and causing the least inconvenience when the new rates take effect, and he suggests that patrons get in communication with the post office if there is any doubt as to the rates that apply.

Postmaster Moyer also takes advantage of the rates now in effect on advertising matter, for all third-class will be 50 per cent higher on and after April 15th.

Advertisers and others mailing out reply cards should not be returned until after the above date should be placed at 2200 and every effort is being put forward to pass this mark. From all indications the hopes of those having charge of the effort will be realized. As one man stated the other day we seem to be saying to our children, "Go to Sunday School." The Telegraph wants to urge its readers to arise one hour earlier next Sunday morning and go, or rather, come to Sunday school.

TRY FOR RECORD ATTENDANCE FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

2200 in Schools Dixon Township Next Sunday, Objective

The Sunday schools of Dixon city and township are making a special effort to increase their attendance. The effort is being promoted by every Sunday school through the District Sunday School Association, of which Rev. B. H. Cleary is president and George Weyant is secretary.

The average attendance for all the Sunday schools in this district is approximately 1,500 each Sunday and the objective was placed at 2,200 for last Sunday. Many felt this figure to be too high to reach but when the reports came in it showed that the objective of 1,800 had been passed.

Next Sunday the objective has been placed at 2,200 and every effort is being put forward to pass this mark. From all indications the hopes of those having charge of the effort will be realized. As one man stated the other day we seem to be saying to our children, "Go to Sunday School." ### School Teachers, Pupils Asked to HELP NEEDY ONES

State Supt. Blair in Plea For Illinois' Tornado Victims

Springfield, Ill., April 10.—(By the Associated Press)—School teachers and pupils the state were asked today for contributions for tornado stricken schools of southern Illinois, in a circular letter from Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction.

The plan involves donation of small amounts by teachers and students in the state university, five teachers colleges, high schools and elementary schools. It is expected to yield approximately $25,000.

"Most of the school district, which lost their buildings are now bonded to the Illinois State Board of Education," Mr. Blair wrote, "much of the personal and real property on which a tax would be laid has been destroyed. Unless buildings are reconstructed and refurnished, thousands of children will be deprived of a school opportunity next year."

"An estimate indicates that the insurance and an additional amount of $250,000 would rebuild or repair all of these public school buildings. Constitutional restrictions prohibits a direct appropriation by the legislature to an individual school district for building purposes. It therefore, appears that this amount must be raised by contribution. It seems altogether right and appropriate that the gifts should come from the school system of the state—its teachers and its pupils."

The plan of allotments and quotas is as follows: The university and five teachers colleges $10,000; elementary and high school teachers, $100 each, making a total of $40,000; high school pupils 50 cents each, $105,000; elementary school children ten cents each, $100,000.

Pupils carrying pictures of the destroyed school buildings are being prepared for use in the school rooms.

$300,000,000 Tax Cut is Predicted by Mr. Madden

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Mr. Madden said the treasury surplus for the current fiscal year would approximate $45,000,000 and that for the fiscal year beginning July 1, it would approach $73,000,000. He pointed out, however, that deficiency and supplemental appropriations to be authorized by the next congress would reduce the latter total.

Mr. Madden, who has been ill with influenza, will sail Tuesday for Europe to study the fiscal system of the French, German and British governments.

CORONER CALLED TO STAND IN DEFENSE OF RIDING MASTER

Says Alleged Murderer Didn't Seem to Realize His Crime

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Wheaton, Ill., April 10.—Dr. W. B. Hoff, former coroner of DuPage county, who yesterday was a witness for the state in the trial of George Munding, society riding master, for the murder of Mrs. Julia Abby Douglas, Hinsdale equestrienne, today was called as a witness for the defense, Clarence Dawson, chief of counsel for the defense, sought to show by Dr. Hoff that Munding at the time he killed had no realization of what he did.

"Doctor, you went to Chicago with the sheriff to get Munding after he had been arrested, did you not?" Dr. Dawson asked.

"Yes, I did."

"Did you have any conversation with Munding on the way from the Chicago police station to Wheaton?"

"Yes," the witness replied, "when we left the police station in Chicago, Munding bade his father goodbye and told him not to worry that everything would come out all right. When we got into the automobile, Munding turned to John Nicholson, the Hinsdale chief of police and said, 'what have I done?' the chief replied, 'I know.' Munding then asked, 'did I hit anyone,' and 'is she dead?'"

In reply to the latter question, Chief Nicholson said, "there is the coroner." Munding then said "My God, my God, what have I done? I don't want to live any longer. What is my life to me?" Later I talked to him at the county jail in Wheaton and told him he had better get a lawyer. He said he did not need any lawyer and that he was willing to go before the coroner's jury at the inquest and tell everything he could. Then he asked me when the funeral was to be held and if he would be allowed to attend. I told him he would not be allowed to go if I had anything to do with it. 'If I can't have one last look at her I'll not testify.'"

FEDERAL COURTS MAY BE INVOKED, ATTORNEYS STATE

Poison Enough to Kill Two is Found in Mrs. McClintock's Body

BULLETIN

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Springfield, Ill., April 10.—William D. Shepherd, foster father of William Nelson McClintock, "millionaire orphan," was today denied a writ of habeas corpus by the Supreme Court. The court offered no comment at all.

BULLETIN

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Chicago, April 10.—Federal courts may be asked by the defense to take jurisdiction of the case of William D. Shepherd charged with the murder of his foster son, William Nelson McClintock. It was learned today after the Illinois supreme court had refused a writ of habeas corpus.

William S. Stewart, counsel for Shepherd, after hearing the news from Springfield, said he did not care to announce future plans until after he has received a copy of the official finding of the supreme court.

On Constitutional Grounds.

That the federal courts may be asked to consider the case, was presumably upon constitutional grounds, was hinted at by the attorney, who three times prior to going to the state's highest court, had sought and was denied, in criminal courts, bail for Shepherd.

The effort to obtain a writ of habeas corpus from the high court was intended to free Shepherd on the ground that he was being deprived of his liberty illegally. Illinois law provides that one charged with murder may be granted bail unless the proof is evident or the presumption of guilt is great.

In the meantime, State's Attorney Grove issued a subpoena for Dr. Charles Krusenmark, last attending physician of Mrs. McClintock, to appear in Mr. Grove's office for questioning.

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Chicago, April 10.—Enough mercury poisoning to have killed two persons has been found in the body of Mrs. Emma McClintock, mother of William N. McClintock, orphan millionaire, whom William D. Shepherd, his foster father, is charged with killing with typhoid germs, according to Coroner Wolf.

The coroner's formal statement issued after his chemist reported poisoning to have killed two persons, stated that after 15 years burial, said the poison was administered in a series of potions about the time she was visiting with the Shepherds who then lived in Texas.

When Mrs. McClintock died in Chicago shortly after the Texas visit, her will placed her son under the guardianship of Mrs. Shepherd, with whom she had attended a Kansas college, with a fee of $15,000 a year.

The coroner said he had "a pretty strong suspicion" as to who might have administered the poison.

Dr. William McNally, coroner's chemist who examined the body of Mrs. McClintock had not completed analysis of the vital organs of Dr. Oscar Olson, McClintock family physician, whose body was disinterred at the same time as that of Mrs. McClintock. Dr. Olson, brother of Harry Olson, municipal court chief justice and instigator of the inquiry into McClintock's death, died 3 years ago, a few hours after Shepherd had visited him.

Detectives who checked medical prescriptions given Mrs. McClintock in her last illness announced none showed the use of mercury compounds had been contained in them.

Several witnesses have been found by Judge Olson who will testify when the coroner's inquest into the deaths of Mrs. McClintock and Dr. Olson is resumed.

One of these, a man named Eaton, had said, according to Judge Olson, that he saw Shepherd give Mrs. McClintock a bottle of medicine during her trip to the southwest from which she returned to die. Another St. Louis woman, had made a statement that Mrs. McClintock apparently was "in the best of health" when she passed through St. Louis on her way to visit the Shepherds.

MAYBE SHE DID NOT TRUST ASSOCIATES—

By Associated Press Lensed Wire.
Paris, April 10.—One of the latest fads of fashion is a large jewel pendant to be worn with the low back evening gown. The string is of a length to permit the jewel to follow the cut of the gown at the back while the pendant is set with stones to match the costume.

In certain quarters, however, the fad has not become popular. At a reception recently a society woman was asked why she did not have her pendant hanging down the back instead of the front of her dress.
"It seems safer to hang it where I can see it," she replied.

AS EDWARD MOORE OF THE TRIBUNE, SEES IT—

A music critic does not have to be a technically trained musician to write reviews for newspapers. Edward Moore, music critic of the Chicago Tribune, told students of the Merrill School of Journalism, Northwestern University, in a lecture a few nights ago.

Music is the most abstract of all the arts, therefore the most difficult to write about. One cannot appeal to the mind's ear, attempting to reproduce melodies heard as the dramatic critic reproduces the action of a play for the mind's eye.

"There is nothing concrete that he can discuss. Therefore he must often write about the musician rather than the music. Opera furnishes his one opportunity for description."

WON A BRIDE, A BET AND A "BEANERY"—

By Associated Press Lensed Wire.
Metuchen, N. J., April 10.—Metuchen was asked today at the sight of a bachelor who, having won a bride, a bet and a beanery, spent the first evening of his honeymoon bowling and showed no inclination to collect the bet.

Philip Kreps, owner of three taxicabs, wagered his machines against the restaurant operated by William A. Eichbaum that, without having any particular girl in mind, he could secure a bride within 36 hours.

New Jersey laws require that 48 hours elapse between issuance of a marriage license and the ceremony. Not to be circumvented Kreps and his bride Miss Estelle Hollis of Highland Park, went to St. George, R. I., where the ceremony was performed yesterday morning.

Next Wednesday is to be Bundle Day

The children on this day will take bundles of clothing to the schools where it is to be gathered and sent to the Armenian children of the near East. The word children is used because the parents have in nearly every case been slaughtered in the upheavals of war and banditry, etc. There are 100,000 children who are orphans. The clothing is sadly needed by the poor little waifs and as usual, America is coming handsomely to the front. The children in the schools in the United States are anxious and more than willing to help with the nation of their parents. We understand the movement in the schools here is in charge of Miss Bertha Haynes, school nurse.

TOM SAWYER'S CAVE.

Shade of Tom Sawyer! His cave on the bank of the Mississippi river near Hannibal, Mo., is likely to be whitewashed for the benefit of tourists. Not that whitewash is inappropriate for Tom Sawyer's cave. He was the boy, and Mark Twain the author, who may be said to have made inseparable from thoughts of American ingenuity. But whitewashing stalagmites and stalactites in order to make them look better to tourists sounds a little fussy.

It may be a sensible move. It is said that many years ago the strange and interesting formations within the cave were gleaming white. Since then, however, thousands of tourists have passed through, carrying lighted candles whose smoke has dimmed the original radiance of the rocks. Also, many of the tourists have smoked cornob pipes. That has become a traditional act for visitors to the Mark Twain country.

So perhaps a coat of whitewash applied the interior of the cave and a change to electric flashlights instead of the candles are inevitable, although one wonders whether Tom would approve any more of having his cave cleaned up than of having his own face washed.

GENEVA BROADCASTING.

The League of Nations is going into the broadcasting business. Also the weather business. It is in connection with the building of the largest radio station in the world, on the top of Mount Saleve, overlooking Geneva.

The station is intended for the triple purpose of observing the heavens, the atmosphere and the earth. That is to say, in scientific jargon, it will be astronomical, meteorological and seismological. The cost will be $2,000,000. The radio station is expected to be powerful enough to broadcast around the earth and keep in touch with ships and water conditions all over the Atlantic and Pacific. The telescope used by the astronomers established there will be likewise the largest in the world, more than ten feet in diameter, and powerful enough to explore distant clusters and nebulas and photograph hitherto unrecorded stars.

Plan of the promoters is to have an international weather office there in connection with the league. That body will be allowed at least fifteen minutes a day for absolutely uninterrupted world broadcasting. It will be an interesting expansion of league activities, and will be awaited with interest.

A NEW ONE.

Crossword puzzles, it seems, not only are a mental stimulus but conducive to good health.

In that excellent little pamphlet, "Chicago's Health," issued by Chicago's health department, they are termed the "mental daily dozen."

"Health of mind," it points out, "is of as much consequence to happiness and well being as is health of body. A rational cycle of work, study, relaxation and amusement is essential to the health of mind."

"To solve a crossword puzzle requires mental alertness, concentration and strict application to order and rules. Moreover, it's great fun. Activity is increased under the influence of pleasant feelings, giving a stronger heart beat, stirring the glands to better performance and invigorating the organs of the body."

Let the crossword skeptics digest this.

WISDOM FROM AUSTRALIA.

Past civilizations have been wrecked by four things, says Tom Skeayhill, Australian poet, now in this country.

First, biological ungodliness, breeding out the fit; second, economic ungodliness, misusing surplus wealth; third, surviving savagery in the blood of civilized nations; fourth, warfare.

The youth of today, he declares, is determined to improve the human breed, to make better use of wealth, to overcome lurking savagery and to abolish war. And in doing so, it has little use for the old leaders and the old "theological theatricals and lip religion," because it has seen them fail. It seeks religion—especially a return to "the principles of the Founder of Christianity," and it trusts its own leadership.

All of which rings true and brings hope. This same irreverent youth in which age sees so much menace may yet save the world.

DIGGING FOR TREASURE.

"For my part," writes an educator, "I should be satisfied if we did nothing else at our universities but teach our students to think. The students must realize that they must do the digging for the treasure which the university offers."

These are wise words, and their application might well be brought down into the high schools. Digging for their treasure, in education or recreation, is an activity which more young people and more grownups need to take up for the health of their minds and souls as well as their bodies.

Too many things come to modern Americans too easily these days. They tempt people to forget the resources within themselves which need to be developed and used. More digging to discover some of these will add zest to the enjoyment of everything.

It may be, as a critic remarks, that "the prestige of a congressman was never so low as it is now." But the congressmen themselves are remedying that. Knowing that money gives prestige, they have raised their own salaries.

TOM SIMS SAYS:

Spring arrived just in time. Practically all the long underwear was turning into bell-bottomed trousers. One tells us a girl has to use entirely too much rouge if she doesn't want to appear conspicuous.

A bachelor tells us a married man is one who once got lonely and couldn't find anything to drink.

Wonder if we just think working girls more sensible because we never see them in evening dresses?

Sometimes we think a spinster is one who used her sense instead of hiding it.

Flivvers look so much alike when one is stolen that the owner has to identify it by sound.

A mad last June bridegroom tells us that instead of assisting him she is always insulting him.

HIGHERBROWSE AND LOW HAVE OWN LANGUAGE

Modern psycho-analytic jargon has reached the assault and battery stage. A California school board candidate accused his opponent of "inferiority complex" and "incipient paranoia." In other words, he was a boob and a nut.

Whereupon, bellicose manifestations ensued, with consequent traumatic confusions. In other words they mixed it, and one of them got bumped on the beeper.

Which of these languages is English? Neither the highbrow nor the lowbrow is standard style.

One is above and the other below the level. And yet we tend to use one or the other. In our specialties, we use technical vocabularies; in conversation, we fall into slang.

In ancient Latin, similar tendencies finally developed different languages. The language of books and of the people became mutually unintelligible, until one of them froze into Monks-Latin and the other fused into French, Spanish, Italian and their variants.

If the same thing does not happen to English, we may owe it to the newspapers and the radio. Newspaper reporters write "English," but they have to write it so as to be understood o2D8q.9K "High arodi understood of the people."

Radio announcers are not yet all literate, and when some of them speak is scarcely English, but as they and their broadcasters become an institution, they will have to learn to speak at least as well as reporters write.

Thus the gap between print and speech will be bridged. Which is highbrow for being able to say, each to each, "I getcha."

Referring to one of California's many freak religious sects—one seared its saint with hot iron—the New York Herald Tribune says: "In America the combination of an unsolidified social order and a raw but literate frontier psychology seems to have given bad results."

This is the provincialism of the of fete East, which judges the Far West by two-gun movies.

Some of it, the West, and especially California, cheerfully concedes. The freak sects we acknowledge; also the "unsolidified social order." A new country is not yet either solidified or ossified. And the "literate" we not only confess, but proclaim.

California, with one-thirtieth the nation's population, has one-tenth its high school students. The proportion of university students is even greater. The University of California is the largest university in the Scott & Bowne, New York, N. Y.

"Snitcher Snatch has a sweet tooth—he may be here," said Mister Whizz.

The next place that Snitcher Snatch, the goblin, went to was Daddy Gander Town.

The Twins and Mister Whizz knew this because the white crow had told them.

Snitcher Snatch had stolen their aeroplane so they had to use magic. With magic shoes it is wonderful the place one can get to by just wishing.

For about two minutes and a half they were there, right in Mrs. John's apple orchard, not from the House That Jack Built.

But there was no sign of Snitcher Snatch or his aeroplane anywhere.

"We'll have to go around and ask everybody if they have seen him," said Mister Whizz. "It is really most remarkable the way that scallawag can hide himself."

They walked down Pippin Hill and then along Broom Street, and on the corner they came to the Muffin Man's Shop.

There was a big sign there that said, "Hot Cross Buns For Sale." "Snitcher Snatch has a sweet tooth—he may be here," said Mister Whizz. "Let's go in."

So they all went into the Muffin Man's Shop and looked around.

But there was nobody there but fat Mrs. Spratt with a basket basket. She had picked out a dozen doughnuts and half a dozen hot cross buns and four cream puffs and her basket was just about full.

The Muffin Man was counting out her change and the cash drawer was open.

"That comes to two shillings six pence," said the Muffin Man.

"Did you see Snitcher Snatch around here anywhere, Mister Muffin Man?" asked Nick, as they all waited in.

What's that? The bad little goblin who stole the Muffin Man's shop and one time?" cried Mrs. Spratt. "What has he been doing now?"

"He's stolen the gold snuff box that belonged to the Fairy Queen's uncle," said Nancy.

"And he's run off with my aeroplane," said Mister Whizz.

The Lord Mayor should be told at once!" cried the Muffin Man.

Nobody saw a long nose sticking out of a doorway in the back of the Muffin Man's Shop.

And nobody saw the person with the long nose shake a few grains of something out on to his hand and blow it through the doorway.

Instantly the Muffin Man went, "Achoo!" so hard that all the money flew out of his cash drawer and rolled out of his door and down the street.

And Mrs. Spratt went, "Achoo! Achoo!" so hard that everyone of her doughnuts and buns and cream puffs flew out of the window and onto Mrs. Tweedle's roof.

And Nancy and Nick and Mister Whizz went, "Achoo! Achoo! Achoo!" so hard that the person with the long nose went flying out the back door and turned three somersaults.

And some of the magic snuff spilled out of his snuff box (for, of course, you have guessed that it was Snitcher Snatch) and the wind blew it all over Daddy Gander Town. Then the fun began.

world. A state with these things is certainly "literate."

But the "frontier psychology" we repudiate. If there are any frontier conditions of society or of mind, left in America, they are located far east of California. The Pacific coast is "frontier" only in the sense that it is now the front door, instead of the back door, of America.

BLOC SYSTEM CHIEF ENEMY OF DECISION.

The first comment on the German election was that it showed the futility of the bloc system. Later developments indicate that the bloc system is curing itself. Even at the first election, the conservative and "bourgeois" parties had united on one candidate.

Now, for the second election, the moderate and liberal parties are uniting on Chancellor Marx, whose election seems to be assured. Thus, for the presidential election, a two-party system is actually in operation, with one of the best and safest men in Germany as the candidate of the principal party.

When something has to be decided, the ability of the two-party system to reach results, and the futility of anything else, become evident.

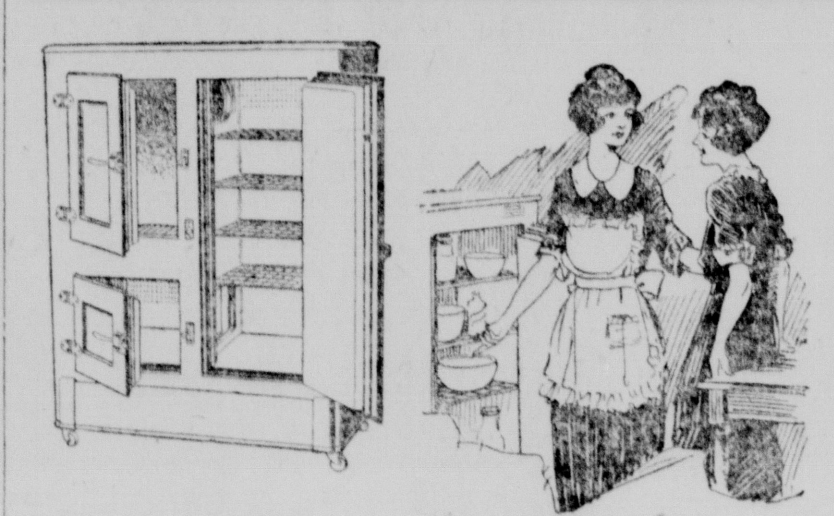

This, the first presidential election ever held on the continent of Europe by popular vote, is teaching lessons which may make for political education away from bloc-system chaos, even in parliamentary elections.

For even in Parliaments, though their first function is to discuss, their final responsibility is to decide. The bloc system is the chief enemy of decision.

There are many things said about Hollywood that are true and many more that are untrue. There are some wild parties, of course, but where on the civilized globe can you not find wild parties where there is youth, some leisure and money.

I heard a friend of mine the other day who has been spending the winter at Coronado, that great playground of America, talk about the people who came there and I came to the conclusion that there were perhaps wilder parties in society than among the moving picture set.

However, if you come out here, my dear, I will introduce you to the prettiest girls and the handsomest young men in the whole world. You may dance to your heart's content. You see I remember how you used to love to dance.

CHAPTER XXVIII—Continued

Even at that distance Baree could see him grinning affably; he saw the outstretched hand, and the voice stirred new sensations in him. It was not like Pierrot's voice. He had never loved Pierrot. Neither was it soft and sweet like the Willow's. He had known only a few men, and all of them he had regarded with distrust. But this was a voice that disarmed him. It was luring in its appeal. He wanted to answer it. He was filled with a desire, all at once, to follow close at the heels of this stranger. For the first time in his life a craving for the friendship of man possessed him. He did not move until Jim Carvel entered the spruce. Then he followed.

That night they were camped in a dense growth of cedars and balsams ten miles north of Bush McTaggart's trap-line. For two hours it had snowed, and their trail was covered. It was still snowing, but not a flake of the white deluge sifted down through the thick canopy of boughs. Carvel had put up his small silk tent, and had built a fire; their supper was over, and Baree lay on his belly facing the outlaw, almost within reach of his hand. With his back to a tree summer before last, just when the Mounties were after me hardest an' it looked pretty black. Man was found drowned down in the Reindeer Country, right where they thought I was cornered; an' the good Lord made that man look so much like me that he was buried under my name. So I'm officially dead, old chap. I don't need to be afraid any more so long as I don't get too familiar with people for a year or so longer, and 'way down inside me I've liked to believe God fixed it up in that way to help me out of a bad hole. What's your opinion? Eh?"

CHAPTER XXIX

Baree was on his feet, rigid as hewn rock, when Carvel came out of the tent, and for a few moments Carvel stood in silence, watching him closely. Would the dog respond to the call of the pack? Did he belong to them? Would he go—now? The wolves were drawing nearer. They were not circling, as a caribou or a deer would have circled, but were travelling straight—dead straight for their camp. The significance of this fact was easily understood by Carvel. All that afternoon Baree's feet had left a blood-smell in their trail, and the wolves had struck the trail in the deep forest, where the falling snow had not covered it. Carvel was not alarmed. More than once in his five years of wandering between the Arctic and the Height of Land he had played the game with the wolves. Once he had almost lost, but that was out in the open Barren. Tonight he had a fire, and in the event of his firewood running out he had trees he could climb. His anxiety just now was centered in Baree. So he said, making his voice quite casual.

"You aren't going, are you, old chap?"

If Baree heard him he gave no evidence of it. But Carvel, still watching him closely, saw that the hair along his spine had risen like a brush, and then he heard—growing slowly in Baree's throat—a snarl of ferocious hatred. It was the sort of snarl that had held back the Factor from Lac Bain, and Carvel, opening the breech of his gun to see that all was right, chuckled happily. Baree may have heard the chuckle. Perhaps it meant something to him, for he turned his head suddenly and with flattened ears looked at his companion.

The wolves were silent now. Carvel knew what that meant, and he was tensely alert. In the stillness the click of the safety on his rifle sounded with metallic sharpness. For many minutes they heard nothing but the crack of the fire. Suddenly Baree's muscles seemed to snap. He sprang back, and faced the quarter behind Carvel, his head level with his shoulders, his inch-long fangs gleaming as he snarled into the black caverns of the forest beyond the rim of firelight. Carvel had turned like a shot. It was almost frightening—what he saw. A pair of eyes burning with greenish fire, and then another pair, and after that so many of them that he could not have counted them. He gave a sudden gasp. They were like cat-eyes, only much larger. Some of them, catching the firelight fully, were red as coals, others flashed blue and green—living things without bodies. With a swift glance he took in the black circle of the forest. They were out there, too; they were on all sides of them, but where he had seen them first they were thickest. In those first few seconds he had forgotten Baree, awed almost to stupefaction by that monster-eyed cordon of death that hemmed them in. There were fifty—perhaps a hundred wolves out there, afraid of nothing in all this savage world but fire. They had come up with the sound of a padded foot or a broken twig. If it had been later, and they had been asleep, and the fire out—

He shuddered, and for a moment the thought got the better of his nerves. He had not intended to shoot except from necessity, but all at once his rifle came to his shoulder and he sent a stream of fire out where the eyes were thickest. Baree knew what the shots meant, and filled with a mad desire to get at the throat of one of his enemies he dashed in their direction. Carvel gave a startled yell as he went. He saw the flash of Baree's body, saw it swallowed up in the gloom, and in that same instant heard the deadly clash of fangs and the impact of bodies. A wild thrill shot through him. The dog had charged alone—and the wolves had waited. There could be but one end. His four-footed comrade had gone straight into the jaws of death!

Carvel was twisting his hands until his knuckles cracked. An exultant smile lighted up his face, and his eyes flashed back the firelight. Baree drew a deep breath—a mere coincidence; but it was a tense moment for all that.

"No, he didn't get to the penitentiary," went on Carvel, looking straight at Baree again. "Yours truly knew what that meant, old chap. He'd have been pardoned inside a year. An' there was my Dad, the biggest half of me, in his grave. So I just went up to that white-striped skunk right there before the Judge's eyes, an' the lawyers' eyes, an' the eyes of all his dear relatives an' friends—and I killed him! And I got away. Was out through a window before they woke up, hit for the bush country, and have been eating up the trails ever since. An' I guess God was with me, Boy. For He did a queer thing to help me out

PLAYLETS, SONGS AND MOVIES WILL SHOW HEALTH WEEK

April 26 to May 2 Set Aside in State for Health Promotion

Springfield, Ill.—Playlets, songs and movies are in high favor for health week programs, according to Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director. What was regarded as an ample supply of playlets, and songs to satisfy the demands for health promotion week, which will be observed April 26 to May 2, was published some time ago and now a second and larger edition of this material is practically exhausted, the director said. The demands for picture films have made it necessary to draw upon a number of outside agencies to fill the needs.

"Public interest in health week is distinctly greater than ever before since the custom was inaugurated in the state seven years ago," said Dr. Rawlings. "Responses to program suggestions from schools, colleges, medical societies, health associations and churches have been especially voluminous. College presidents from all parts of the state have expressed a purpose to put on health programs for the benefit of student bodies. School teachers and nurses in practically every county are planning to present health playlets and songs. Other organizations are preparing programs on a community scale, involving motion pictures, health demonstrations and lectures by talented speakers.

"At a recent meeting in Springfield between representatives of half a dozen state-wide health organizations it was decided to pool the educational resources of all agencies in order to facilitate wide usage during health week. This arrangement offers to the public a surprisingly wide selection of such material as songs, playlets, motion picture films, posters, literature and talented speakers. Through the Illinois Medical Society it will be possible to fill 150 speaking engagements with some of the very best public speakers in the medical profession of the state. All of these services and material are available through the state health department at Springfield. "The purpose of health week is simply to focus public thought on this important subject. It is interesting to observe that since the first observance of this event in 1919, the state has enjoyed the most favorable health conditions of which there are records. Mortality rates have been exceedingly low by comparison. Epidemics have been few. Good health has been the rule."

Deeper plowing doubles the crop

A recent test by the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station showed that land plowed only three inches deep, as is common with horse farmers, raised but fourteen and one-half bushels of wheat to the acre.

In contrast to this, land plowed seven inches deep in summer heat, by tractor power, raised nearly thirty-nine bushels of wheat to the acre.

Think of it! Tractor plowing in season more than doubled the crop—almost trebled it. Successful tractor farmers everywhere report thousands of similar experiences.

With unfailing HART-PARR power you can plow day and night during the best plowing season, turning over an acre an hour regardless of heat, flies or the hardness of the soil. Unlike horses, a HART-PARR never needs rest. Two Kansas farmers, using a HART-PARR, plowed for six days and six nights without once stopping the engine.

A HART-PARR is equally useful for discing and seeding. And in the fall it will make quick work of your harvesting, threshing, husking, shredding and silo filling. While in winter it will shell corn, grind feed and saw wood.

This economical kerosene-burning tractor comes in three sizes, for the large, medium and small farm. Ask us to demonstrate one of the improved models, with enclosed drive, disc clutch, detachable power take-off and greatly increased power for belt and field work.

Call or Write For This FREE Book

This big free book will convince you of the economy of power farming, and also show you how to get the most for your money when you come to buy a tractor. Contains scores of interesting illustrations and hundreds of helpful facts for the farmer who would like to grow bigger, sturdier and more profitable crops. Just call or write for a copy—it's free!

Japanese Barberies Destroyed by Blaze
 Several very fine Japanese barberies bushes surrounding the beautiful E. N. Howell property on East Fellows St. were destroyed and others badly damaged by fire yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock. The fire is believed to have started from a cigarette stub thrown from an automobile into the dry bushes igniting leaves and dry grass at the roots. Neighbors extinguished the blaze which threatened to destroy the entire hedge.
 The number of Methodists in the United States is 4,711,944.

Do it today. Tomorrow might be too late. Insure that automobile. Hal will take care of it for you. He is on the job at the Dixon Loan and Building Ass'n. from 8 to 6. Drop in anytime.

The Blindness of Youth

In Judith's set, a girl was either a "good fellow," or she was "out of luck." For example, "What was wrong with a little drink between friends?" Judith wanted to be popular, but she could not know that in finally yielding to the taunts of her friends and taking her first little drink—just to be a "good fellow"—was to be the beginning of a mad career of folly that would end in the blackest tragedy. Never was the curse of drink brought home as in the story of Judith, appearing under the title, "Tangled Threads," in True Story Magazine for May. And this is only one of many remarkable features in the May issue. Get your copy today.

OBITUARY

KIRBY J. REED

Kirby Joseph Reed son of Joseph and Mary E. Reed, was born in Funkstown, Maryland on the 30th day of August, 1875. He was the sixth in a family of eight children. When he was but a small boy the family, hearing the call of the great West, moved to the state of Nebraska to establish a new home. But after a very short time they came to Illinois and located in Polo, Illinois where the home remained until the death of the parents. In Polo Mr. Reed grew to manhood, and there on the 7th day of October, 1907 he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Unger of that vicinity. The young couple went to housekeeping in Polo. Later, however, a year was spent in Preopert, Ill. They came to Dixon in April of 1907 and have made their home in this city since that date.

From childhood he was a thrifty and energetic man. He never did anything in a half-hearted manner. At a very early age he secured a position in a grocery store and more than earned his own way as a mere boy. To this line of work he stuck his life long. He was instinctively a worker. He never spared himself. By self sacrifice, by hard work, and by tireless industry he won a place for himself in the business world.

He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity, taking a very active part in Dixon Commandery No. 21 Knights Templar. As a young man he united with the Church and remained a member of the same until he was called by death.

He had not been well for some time and in large measure because of his physical condition the business in which he was a partner was disposed of in order that he might rest and undergo whatever treatment seemed necessary. The disease to which he fell victim developed rapidly and in spite of all that could be done by physician's skill and loving care he gradually weakened until those who were nearest realized that he could not carry long. He was ready and not afraid to die. On Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock his eyes were gently closed in death. His age was 49 years, 7 months and 6 days.

The members of the immediate family who are left to mourn his passing are: his wife, Mary Unger Reed; his son, Robert V. Reed, their only child; three sisters, Mrs. J. E. Troxell, Funkstown, Md., Mrs. Cora Thomas, Denver, Colo., and Mrs. R. C. Adkinson, Florence, Colo.; one brother, Mr. Calvin Reed, Hagerstown, Md.

In addition to these there are scores of friends and acquaintances who knew him and loved him and will greatly miss him.

The funeral was conducted from the late residence with his pastor, Rev. Aubrey Shannon Moore of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, in charge. Interment was at Polo, Illinois.

Good Thoughts for Good People

Salvation must be won, not simply expected without any effort on our part. We can never be saved from evil without actively using good. How great is the satisfaction which comes as we realize that every right thought and act, every true effort to be doers of the work, does tend not only towards our salvation, but so lifts up the light of Truth that others will also long to become doers.

—The Christian Science Journal

Life is a mirror for king and for slave.
'Tis just what you are and do.
Then give to the world the best you have.

And the best will come back to you.
—Madeline Bridges.

Joy in one's work is the consummate tool.

—Phillips Brooks.

Labor humanizes, exalts.

—A. Bronson Alcott.

Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate,
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait.

—Longfellow.

Life is a struggle, but not a warfare; it is a day's labor, but labor on God's earth, under the sun and stars with other laborers, where we may think and sing and rejoice as we work.

—John Burroughs.

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

—Jesus Christ.

Labor disgraces no man; unfortunately, you occasionally find men who disgrace labor.

—U. S. Grant.

FRIDAY
The Crucifixion

Read Lk. 22:26-33. Text: 23:32. And when they came unto a place which is called The skull, there they crucified him.

THE SEVEN LAST WORDS OF JESUS ON THE CROSS—And one of the malefactors said, Jesus, remember me. And he said unto him, Verily I say unto thee Today shalt thou be with me in Paradise.

When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple standing by whom he loved, he saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son!

Then saith he to the disciple, Behold thy mother!

And about the ninth hour Jesus cried, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

After this Jesus saith, I thirst. When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished.

And Jesus, crying with a loud voice, said, Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit.

PRAYER—Most merciful Father, we pray that we may be faithful companions of our Lord. Let us never be found among the mockers, but in lowly submission may we take our place at the foot of the Cross of Christ. Give us grace neither to forsake nor to deny our Lord. May we find our life in Him, Amen.

THE STORY SO FAR

"Where you ran a carpet sweeper, I'm going to run an automobile," GLORIA GORDON tells her hard-worked mother on the eve of her marriage to DICK GREGORY. She has made up her mind that through Dick she will gain the luxury and easy life that her butterfly soul craves. He has already given her a house.

On the night before the wedding, Dick begs Gloria to come downstairs to kiss him, after she has retired. She refuses . . . but only because she doesn't believe in surrendering to a man's wild whims. So Dick waits for his kiss until after the wedding, when the two leave on their honeymoon.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

HER honeymoon was the most wonderful time of Gloria's life. She slept the mornings away, and breakfasted elegantly at noon.

In the afternoons she and Dick hired a sacre to take them far up the steep road to Mount Royal, or out into the country.

They ate in quaint little French restaurants.

And Gloria shopped!

She bought handbags and earrings and more than a dozen bottles of French perfume, while Dick stayed in the hotel reading.

Gloria had never known anyone who read so much as he.

"For a rising young lawyer, you're quite a high-brow, it seems to me," she said one morning.

She was lying back in a long chair while the hotel half-dresser massaged her reddish gold hair. She laughed almost scornfully.

Dick made no answer. He sat down and picked up a book, only to put it down. He filled his pipe and held it unlighted, on the dresser.

"Come here, restless soul, I want to talk to you," Gloria held out to him a slim hand. "Do you know, it's awfully cold out doors?" I nearly froze yesterday. I need a coat. I'd like a fur one. I've been looking at one in that little shop down the street . . ."

Her voice trailed off. The half-dresser had finished her work and was putting her iron and brushes away in a little black bag. Gloria paid her.

THE moment the door had closed behind her, Dick came across the room. He put his hands under Gloria's elbows, holding her away from him.

"Look here, please don't have people hanging around here all the time," he said. "You're beautiful enough without having your hair curled every time the wind blows. I want you alone, all to myself . . ."

With sudden passion he pulled her to him, and kissed her eyelids, her mouth, the little hollow of her throat.

"Wonderful! Beautiful!" he said. His voice was choked and queer.

Gloria could feel the beating of his heart against her own, and the quivering of his hands.

With one of her own she pushed him away from her. She smoothed down her ruffled hair.

"Do you think you can afford the coat?" It's four hundred dollars . . . the one I want, dear," she said coolly.

"She certainly did," answered old Mr. Gregory. Mrs. Gregory beamed at Gloria.

"Dick sometimes has nervous indigestion, as you probably know, dear," she said in her rich contralto voice, "and when he has an attack, I always cook everything for him myself . . . very carefully. 'You undoubtedly will, too.'"

"I can't cook," Gloria said in a very small voice. "I can't cook at all."

"Mother Gregory frowned. Then her wide brow cleared.

"You will learn," she smiled comfortably. "You will learn."

And Gloria smiled back with her ripe lips. But there was no smile in her amber eyes. They were like pools of water that no sunlight has warmed.

She would never learn to cook! She would never be a household drudge, her hands shrouded with washing dishes. Her nails broken. Her dresses smudged with pastry flour. . . . If Dick's mother thought this was the kind of girl her son had married, she was jolly well mistaken!

Gloria widened her eyes. She turned to Mother Gregory.

"By the way, I'll need a cook right away," she said sweetly. "I wonder if Maggie would know of anyone who wants a place. If Dick has a weak stomach, my efforts at cooking would kill him, most likely."

After dinner she and Dick walked home to the new house. It was white with green shutters, and it nestled among the evergreens that surrounded ed it. Everything in it was fresh and new. Dick and she had spent happy months buying furniture for it.

"I say, Gloria, I wonder if we can afford a cook," Dick began the first of what Gloria later called his "economy sermons."

"I can't cook," Gloria said in a very small voice. "I can't cook at all."

"Mother Gregory frowned. Then her wide brow cleared.
